In selecting this helfer from a large herd of about two hundred head, I have exercised my best judgment in giving you not only a royally bred individual, but one whose every appearance indicates an extraordinary fine producer. On her dam's side she is close akin not only to the Ireland bred cattle, but to the best families in America. On her sire's side she is a great-granddaughter of that great and famous animal. I regret very much to see such a fine specimen of Jersey leaving Kentucky, and hope that among your society of friends you might have some one who would be appreciative enough of this youngster to buy it and give you a good price. The Senate Committee on Roads and Internal Navigation met last night and considered the Edmondson road bill, which considered the Edmondson road bill, which has been passed by the House. The measure is a general road bill, and provides, among other things, for the working of convicts from the various counties on the roads of those counties. This feature of the bill is one which will probably be amended by the committee. In its stead will be substituted some provision by which counties so desiring can secure convicts from the penitentiary to work the public roads. The committee merely discussed without action the bill before it, and will meet again in a day or two. TO A WEDDING Director Bostock tries to encourage at

To-morrow afternoon between the hours of 4 and 5, he will fill a place in the society world that no other animal has ever had the honor of. This is to be no more or less than the "best man" at a wedding. The event will take place at the Confederate Bazaar. "Consul" scented to be in very exuberant spirits last night, and is all prepared for the occasion. Every detail has been looked after, even to the payment of his tallor's bill, and now all that is wanted is for the time to arrive. An extra touch will also be added to the affair, as he is to be attended by two recent acquisitions to the Bostock show, who have never as yet been seen in public. These new animals will therefore make their initial bow to the public of Richor two.

The House Committee for Courts of Justice will meet next Monday at 10 A. M. to take up the Fulton anti-trust bill, offered a few days ago. This is resarded as the most drastic mensure of the kind proposed at this session. The discussion of the bill before the committee promises to be an interesting one. At this line stage of the session, however, a bill which will provoke discussion has little show of passage, for both houses have their hands full with measures already on the calendars or in the committees and in advanced stages of consideration.

The Toney bill requiring that vestibules shall be placed on street cars, from November 1st to April 20th each year, which was passed by the House, has been reported from the Committee on Roads of the Senate and was placed on the cafendar. It will be passed in a day or two.

The House Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns yesterday afternoon gave a hearing to a number of Danville gentlemen, who are here to advocate or oppose a bill proposing to extend the charter rights of that town. The county is opposing the bill on the ground that it will diminish the taxable values of the county and the other gentlemen represent the Riverside Cotton Mills Company, whose franchises and plans would be materially affected by the change asked.
